AUXILIARY PROJECTS AND OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

For the second year running, WIU has been named Best International Humanitarian Organization in providing Education of the Year 2020. The awards were presided over by the Vice-President of the Republic Uganda, H.E. Edward Ssekandi Kiwanuka who in his speech urged the visionaries to continue setting the pace as the best in the country. As he accepted the Award, WIU's Executive Director, James Aryam, said: "It is a huge honor for the organization, its partners, staff and stakeholders to be receiving the top award for the second year in a row. This award strengthens our vision and mission to providing access to quality education to our persons of concern and host community. Despite the COVID-19 pandemic which forced the Country to shut down all the education institutions early in the year, WIU continued to facilitate home learning initiatives to all its learners, by providing home learning materials, radio programming and home visits by teachers. A special thank you to our teachers, parents, beneficiaries and partners for the continued support and collaboration."

EDUCATION QUALITY IMPROVEMENT PROJECT (EQUIP)

WIU with support from LDS completed the construction of 18 classrooms in 5 of the most overcrowded primary schools (Nyarugugu, Misyera, Ruhoko, Nakivale, Kabahinda Primary schools), and 3 classrooms in Nakivale Secondary School. The classrooms were all furnished with 189 three seater desks and 189 single seater desks. The ICT lab in Nakivale Secondary School received 22 computer monitors, 10 computer tables and 30 computer stools. The project will also equip Nakivale VTC with training material to reach more students and youth in need of vocational training.

NAKIVALE MASK PROJECT

With support from UNHCR, Nakivale Vocational Training Center's tailoring and garment cutting department undertook a facemask production activity in November 2020, targeting production of 70,000 facemasks. To ensure quality work and faster production, the department called upon some of the best recent graduates and continuing students to participate facemasks production. Each participant earned extra income from this initiative.

This was a pilot commercial project aimed at empowering and equipping beneficiaries with commercial skills for self-sustainability. After a brief training mass production. The participants launched out into mass production. Apart from the additional skilling gained, participants were happy to earn significant volumes of money which boosted their income.
